

BERKELEY
COUNTRY CLUB

EST. 1920

Golf Course Restoration by

FORREST RICHARDSON, ASGCA & MARK K. FINE, ASGCA

FORREST RICHARDSON
GOLF COURSE ARCHITECTS

BERKELEY GOLF CLUB TO HAVE GREAT COURSE

When Finished It Will Be One of Prize Links of Bay District

EXPERTS PLANNING IT

Robert Hunter and John Black Say Ground Is Ideal for Scotch Game

By HAY CHAPMAN

THE future of the Berkeley Country Club is now assured and in thoroughly propitious circumstances. Although the board of directors has prudently decided to make haste slowly, it is now confidently predicted that the course will be opened and ready for play by next February. To call it merely a "course" is really a misnomer, for the 175 acres secured by the club lie within sight of the bay, with splendid, natural golfing ground and the soil of distinctly the right substance. These virtues will entitle it to the enviable term of "links," and the old Scot will tell you that there is and must always be a vital difference between an inland course and a "links."

* * * * *

THE Country Club's property is within four miles of Berkeley. The commanding site on which the clubhouse is to be built provides a panoramic view of San Francisco bay, with Berkeley and Oakland to the left and Richmond on the right—a glorious vista of ocean, mountain and human habitation. To the east is Wildcat canyon, a famous goal of hikers and picnickers; but, to the relief of future golfers, the course just skirts the canyon.

* * * * *

BERKELEY golfers have been peculiarly fortunate in several respects. In the first place, the founders of the club were shrewd business men of foresight and sagacity, who have been at pains to insure its organization on firm principles and a sound financial footing. Membership is to be limited to 300, including men and women, and the

THE ONLY
SOLO DESIGN of ROBERT HUNTER

—
AUTHOR OF THE LINKS & EVENTUAL ASSOCIATE
OF DR. ALISTER
MACKENZIE

HOLE NO. 1

HOLE NO. 4

HOLE NO. 5

HOLE NO. 6

HOLE NO. 7

HOLE NO. 8

HOLE NO. 12

HOLE NO. 13

HOLE NO. 15

HOLE NO. 16 — FORREST RICHARDSON & SHAPER, KYE GOALBY

HOLE NO. 16

HOLE NO. 17

HOLE NO. 18

HOLE NO. 18

MORE ABOUT BERKELEY COUNTRY CLUB

<https://www.forrestrichardsongolf.com/projects/berkeley-country-club/>

VIDEO — RESTORING BERKELEY COUNTRY CLUB

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=43wo2WSmjkU>

ABOUT ROBERT HUNTER

<https://www.forrestrichardsongolf.com/robert-hunter/>